

DEBATE

How could the world community become more democratic?

04.04.2023, 18:30 – 20:00, at Käfigturm, Polit-Forum Bern, Marktgasse 67, 3011 Bern

The global community is facing challenges, for example the climate crisis, that can only be solved collectively. Increasingly, there are calls to address these problems not only transnationally, but also more democratically.

But what is needed for a global democracy and how could transnational political structures be built? What initiatives and ideas already exist and what are their challenges?

And what can be learned from existing supranational democracies such as the EU or the African Union for a world parliament or transnational democracies?

Input presentation by Stefan Kalberer, President Democracy without Borders Switzerland: How democratic is the world community today?

On the panel:

- Dr. Siyana Gurova, Research Associate Center for Global Competitiveness, Zurich University of Applied Sciences ZHAW
- Natalie Imboden, Member of the National Council of Switzerland, GRÜNE
- Rebekka Müller, Chairperson Board of the pan-European party Volt in Germany
- Gina Romero, Executive Director Latin American and Caribbean Network for Democracy (REDLAD)

Moderation: Marguerite Meyer
